

Creative Curriculum Challenge 10

Cardboard Challenge (Art)

This challenge aims to use up all those cardboard boxes we've been collecting over the last few weeks - online ordering is great, isn't it?

Artist Leonor Antunes has turned paper into glass for a new window in St Luke's church. She used the marbled pages of a book from our Cottonian Collection as the basis for her design. The book is called the 'Metamorphosis of the Insects of Surinam'. It was written way back in 1726 by explorer Maria Sibylla Merian.

To make your own cardboard creations inspired by objects around your home, you'll need cardboard, scissors and tape. Make sure you have an adult on hand to help you as well.

Start small, try making a cup or some cutlery - don't proceed directly to making a bike!

Stretch Challenge

Once you've transformed your cardboard into objects, try painting your creations - make those carrots orange for your cardboard roast dinner!

Don't forget to recycle your cardboard after you've finished.

Once you've completed your challenge, send us a photo to theboxlearning@plymouth.gov.uk by the end of Sunday. We'll pick a lucky winner (under 18s only) to receive a bag of goodies from our shop! Make sure you add it to your school home learning book too.
